

Sinclair Broadcasting refused to air an episode of Nightline that merely stated the names of those soldiers killed in Iraq due to what the company considered to be a "blatant political slant" of the show. Now they are showing a much more blatantly politically slanted documentary funded by the same groups that back the Swift Boat Veterans that lambasts John Kerry. How can this sort of double standard be allowed to happen?

Sincerely,
Jason Whitmore